15 Indicate the type of income stream

Note: A Defined Benefit income stream for social security purposes is an income stream where payments are defined by factors like:

- years in service
- final salary, or final average salary over recent years, or
- by criteria determined by the fund's governing rules.

Payments are not defined by the amount of money used to purchase the income stream.

Income streams paid from a SMSF or SAF are not defined benefit income streams for social security purposes.

Account-based Income Stream (also known as Allocated pension)

Please read this before answering the following questions.

- Under section 9A, 9B or 9BA of the Social Security Act 1991 account-based income streams DO NOT meet the required characteristics for asset test exemption and are therefore NEVER asset test exempt.
- Account-based income streams cannot be jointly owned.

16 Date of purchase

This is generally the date the contract was signed and is the same as the commencement date. It is not the date on which the first payment is made.

17 Is there a reversionary pension beneficiary nominated to whom this income stream will automatically revert following the death of the primary pension beneficiary?

No

Yes

18 Relevant Number (RN)

See the Guide to Social Security Law.

RN is calculated at date of purchase and is not recalculated when a commutation is made. If there is no reversionary pension beneficiary nominated, the RN is the life expectancy factor of the primary beneficiary. If there is a reversionary pension beneficiary nominated to whom the income stream will automatically revert on the death of the primary beneficiary, the RN is the longer life expectancy factor of either the primary or reversionary pension beneficiary.

19 Purchase price

Original price paid for the income stream including fees but after tax has been deducted.

20 Have there been any commutations since the income stream commenced?

A commutation includes lump sum withdrawals in cash as well as a rollover.

No Go to next question

Yes Give details below

Amount commuted

Date of commutation

If there have been more than two commutations, attach a separate sheet which details the amount and date of each.

21 Gross annual payment

The amount to be reported must equal the amount that the customer expects to receive during the financial year. At any stage during a financial year, this amount will comprise all payments already received by the customer, excluding commutations, and payments expected to be paid for the remaining period.

Where the income stream commences on a day other than 1 July, the amount to be reported in the first year is an annualised amount and is calculated using the formula below:

(Sum of all payments made or to be made in that financial year/number of days from commencement date until 30 June) x 365

The gross annual payment must never be less than the required minimum payment for a full financial year.

If the date of purchase is between 1 June and 30 June and the first payment has been deferred until after 1 July, the gross annual payment should be reported as $0 and a new schedule provided after 1 July showing the new annual income amount.

22 Account balance at 1 July in the current financial year

Account balance means:

- if the current financial year includes the income stream's commencement day – the income stream's opening balance (i.e. purchase price less any entry fees)
- otherwise, the account balance of the income stream on 1 July.

23 Current account balance

The amount of funds in the account.

Lifetime, Life Expectancy or Term Income Stream

24 Type of income stream

A life expectancy income stream is paid for a fixed term based on the life expectancy ranges specified in section 9B of the Social Security Act 1991 and is not a term product for social security purposes.

An account-based income stream (allocated pension or account-based pension) or a market-linked income stream (term allocated pension) is not a life expectancy product for social security purposes.

30 Does the income stream meet ALL the characteristics required under section 9A or 9B of the Social Security Act 1991, as they applied before 20 September 2007?

An income stream must meet all the required characteristics to qualify as an asset test exempt income stream. (Please use the checklist on pages 9 to 11.)

Note:

- A Term income stream cannot be asset test exempt.
- A Lifetime or Life Expectancy income stream with a commencement date on or after 20 September 2007 cannot be asset test exempt unless it meets the criteria for the retention of asset test exemption. (See question 29.)
- A Lifetime or Life Expectancy income stream sourced from a SMSF or SAF with a commencement date on or after 1 January 2006 cannot be asset test exempt.
- A Lifetime or Life Expectancy income stream sourced from a SMSF or SAF which meets all the characteristics required under section 9A or section 9B of the Social Security Act 1991 must provide the following documents to us:
 - current actuarial certificate prepared in accordance with Guidance Note 465
 - trust deed for a SMSF or SAF from set-up date and under which the income stream is paid, including any amendments to the trust deed, showing that the income stream meets the requirements of section 9A or section 9B of the Social Security Act 1991
 - contract between customer and superannuation fund for the income stream or any other documents such as trustee resolutions or formal letters from the trustee, setting out conditions under which the income stream is paid.

- otherwise, the account balance of the income stream on 1 July.

46 Gross annual payment

The amount to be reported must equal the amount that the customer expects to receive during the financial year. At any stage during a financial year, this amount will comprise all payments already received by the customer, excluding commutations, and payments expected to be paid for the remaining period.

Where the income stream commences on a day other than 1 July, the amount to be reported in the first year is an annualised amount and is calculated using the formula below:

(Sum of all payments made or to be made in that financial year/number of days from commencement date until 30 June) x 365

The gross annual payment must be within the allowable minimum and maximum range.

If the date of purchase is between 1 June and 30 June and the first payment has been deferred until after 1 July, the gross annual payment should be reported as $0 and a new schedule provided after 1 July showing the new annual income amount.

Checklist – Lifetime

Use this page to check that the product meets the requirements of an asset test exempt income stream.

Lifetime income streams are not asset test exempt if purchased on or after 20 September 2007. The exception is where the income stream is eligible to retain asset test exempt status. See question 29 to determine exemption status.

The following rules relate to section 9A of the Social Security Act 1991.

TICK IF THE PRODUCT COMPLIES

1. Payments under the income stream are made at least annually throughout the life of the person.	<input type="checkbox"/>
2. If there is a reversionary beneficiary: (a) the payments will be made throughout the reversionary beneficiary's life, or (b) if the reversionary beneficiary is a child of the primary beneficiary, or of another reversionary beneficiary, payments will be paid annually at least until the child turns 16, or (c) if the child who is the reversionary beneficiary is a full-time student who has turned 16, the income stream will be paid at least until the end of the student's full-time studies or until the student turns 25, whichever occurs sooner.	<input type="checkbox"/>
3. The governing rules or contract specify the total amount of payments that may be made under the income stream in the first year after the commencement date with allowances for commutations (see 9. in this table).	<input type="checkbox"/>
4. The governing rules or contract specify the total amount of payments in any other year, with allowances made for indexation (see 5. in this table), or certain commutations (see 9. in this table).	<input type="checkbox"/>
5. The yearly indexation adjustment is capped at the greater of either: 5 per cent; or the rate of increase in the consumer price index plus 1 per cent. Payments cannot vary downwards.	<input type="checkbox"/>
6. The commencement date of the income stream was the day on which the income stream was purchased (if purchased) or else the day it was acquired (for reversionary beneficiaries and for defined benefit schemes which are not purchased).	<input type="checkbox"/>
7. If the income stream is not a defined benefit scheme, the amount paid as the purchase price is wholly converted into income.	<input type="checkbox"/>
8. The income stream has no residual capital value.	<input type="checkbox"/>

TICK IF THE PRODUCT COMPLIES

9. The income stream cannot be commuted, except where: For income streams purchased or acquired before 20 September 2004 (a) (1) the commutation is made to the benefit of a reversionary beneficiary or to the person's estate on the death of the person, and within 10 years of the commencement day, or For income streams purchased or acquired between 1 January 2006 and 20 September 2007 (a) (2) the commutation is made to the benefit of a reversionary beneficiary or to the person's estate on the death of the person, and within the period equal to the shorter of the primary beneficiary's life expectancy on the commencement day or 20 years, or (b) the income stream is a non-commutation funded income stream and the commutation is made within the first 6 months of the commencement day of the income stream, or (c) the payment resulting from the commutation is transferred directly to the purchase of another income stream that meets all the listed characteristics, or (d) the commutation is made to pay an amount in respect of the superannuation contribution surcharge amount, and only to the extent necessary to pay that surcharge, or (e) the commutation is made to the extent necessary to pay a hardship amount, or (f) the commutation is made to the extent necessary to pay the person's spouse or former spouse under a payment split due to a property settlement on marriage or de facto relationship breakdown (payment split under Part VIII A A or Part VIII B of the Family Law Act 1975).	<input type="checkbox"/>
10. The income stream cannot be transferred to another person, apart from a reversionary beneficiary on the death of the person, or to another reversionary beneficiary on the death of the reversionary beneficiary.	<input type="checkbox"/>
11. Neither the capital value of the income stream, nor the income from it, can be used as security for borrowing.	<input type="checkbox"/>
12. If the income stream reverts to a reversionary beneficiary, it does not have a reversionary component greater than the benefit that was payable immediately before the reversion.	<input type="checkbox"/>
13. If the income stream is commuted, it does not have a commuted component greater than the benefit that was payable immediately before commutation.	<input type="checkbox"/>

Checklist – Life Expectancy

Use pages 10 and 11 to check that the product meets the requirements of an asset test exempt income stream.

Life Expectancy income streams are not asset test exempt if purchased on or after 20 September 2007. The exception is where the income stream is eligible to retain asset test exempt status. See question 29 to determine exemption status.

The following rules relate to section 9B of the Social Security Act 1991.

TICK IF THE PRODUCT COMPLIES

1.	If the income stream was purchased or acquired before 20 September 2004 then the person must have reached pension age on or before the day on which the person purchased or acquired the income stream.
