Social work services
If you are going through a difficult time our social workers can help you.

How we help
Our social workers can help you with:

- short term counselling
- information, and
- referral to support services.

Who we help
Our social workers can help you when you feel you need someone to turn to for support.
You can talk to them about:

- family and domestic violence
- thoughts of suicide or self-harm
- being a young person without support
- a personal or family crisis
- mental health concerns, and
- being affected by a natural disaster.

Experiencing violence
If you are experiencing family and domestic violence our social workers can help you access:

- family and domestic violence services
- emergency accommodation and housing support
- financial help
- counselling
- health services, and
- legal services.

Mental health
Our social workers can help you access mental health support services if you:

- feel depressed
- feel anxious
- are experiencing thoughts of suicide or self-harm, or
• have a mental illness or disorder.

Trained and qualified
All our social workers hold a social work degree and provide their service for free.
We consult with the Australian Association of Social Workers to maintain the highest professional standards.

Your privacy
We respect your right to privacy. We will treat any information you give us in line with our privacy policy.
Our social workers may refer you to a support service. They can only pass on information if you have agreed or if it's required or authorised by law.

How to contact a social worker
To contact a social worker in English call the Centrelink employment services line on 132 850 and ask to speak to a social worker.

Or visit a service centre and ask to speak to a social worker.
You can bring a family member or a friend with you.

Interpreters
If you need an interpreter, tell us and we will arrange one for you. Our interpreters follow a code of ethics. This means they won’t tell anyone else what you’ve talked about.

For more information
